NE reviewer, writing of Mr. Begbie's companion volume to "Twice-Born Men," says: Mr. Begbie preaches the most eloquent sermon that has ever been delivered tend the text; "Other sheep have I which are not of the fold," and after reading the book in question we will agree with the statement. This is a remarkable book, Mr. gegbie's evicious work has shown him to be a master of the literary craft. He has also the gift of insight, a deeply religious some hand, and a, genuina sympathy for human nature. Thus some production field has resulted in a book that is in every way as tian Mission field has resulted in a book that is in every way a andian Mission field has resulted in a book that is in every way a fit companion volume to the book many of our readers have persent with so much interest—"Twice-Born Men."

Mr. Harold Bogbie travelled a good deal with Commissioner Booth-Tucker, and concerning the bead of The Salvation Army work in India he says: "No one is better acquainted with line work in India he says: "No one is belter acquainted with the mind and sout of India; no noe has ever pencirated further risk since an pretent do a knowledge anything tike so intimate and sympathetic of her inner tife, her tuman heart, her Iroubled you!" It is not surprising then that with such a guide and such a writer we have a marvellous book, which contains fascinating gen pictures of eastern crowds and Oriecolat colonies; minute purcus of devit worship, devil priesis and devil temples, and the forms of worship, together with a remarkable testimony to the power of the Gospel of Christ in righten the lives of the semighted heathen. We herewith reproduce some extracts from the pages of "Other Sheep." They will suggest the character of its contents: pen pictures of eastern crowds and Unicotal colonies; minute

BEAD DRESSES AMUSING AND ECCENTRIC.

In Europe eccentricity in head-dress is the exclusive pranince of women; in India it 'clongs solely to men. The lillic, thin-armed straight-legged women of India go by without hals all any kind, either exposing their coco-nut-oiled black hair enand any kind, either exposing their coco-nut-oiled black flair entirely to the blaze of the sun, or else drawing hall-way over lineir keeds a portion at the cluth which maly partially conceals liteir heeds a portion and the cluth which maly partially conceals liteir heeds a portion at the cluth which may be present of India sport every kind of hat imaginable. The old and bespectacled Paeri goes by in a tall, brimless, and patent-leather ercetion, which strikes a compromise between the mitre of a bistop and a demestic coal-smitle stood upon its end; the younger and trock meane can-saute stone upon to care in overcoloured dune gooded Parsi sambers along under a lills dovercoloured dune like a pudding-basin with just a narrow pedium of fur fur the rim. Nothing in the least degree approximating to the ideal of English motherhood is known among the peoples of India, A known am may indeed be a vertable termagant and make the life of English motherhood is known amoug the peoples of India, A woman may indeed he a vertitable termagant and make the life of her husband a scerce endurable martyrdom, but she is nover his commanion and friend, and never the moral providence and spiritual counsellor of his children. She cooks her husband's med, but may not ext lill he has finished; she goes cut to work in the fields with her husband, but may not walk at his side. You will see women in India loading an engine will cod, making bricks in the brick-fields, laying stones on the road, bearing bricks in the brick-fields, laying stones on the road, bearing holds of morater up the scatfolding of a new building opean pail to the cess-fit; but you will never so a new thousand gangerin-arm with her sons. You will never see a happy and rejoieng games will her sons. You will never see a happy and rejoieng mother, the prick of her husband, the loy of her children, and the superne influence for clearacter and prosperity in the home.

And yet, by the irony of fate, influidely the most heautiful building in ludia, perhaps in the whole world, is that ivory-coloured tom of loveliness decaming in a green gardon on the hanks of the Juniua, whose steady minarets and loffy dame, whose pieced and eaven marbles and inlaid walls of precious stones are raised as the memorial of a man's love for a woman. And not as some people are disposed to link, as the passionate of energy and the present of the summent of a lover for his mistress, of some about a subsent of the patents.

rament of a lover for his mistress, of some Autory for his Cleopaten, but as the enduring and solemn reverence of a husband for as virtuous and homely mailron as ever hrought fourteen children into life and died in childhed. Such is the Taij Mahlawa witness to a man's love for his materimental wife, and it stands in a country where men and women meither walk logether nor at logather, and where the woman is, degraded to the most negint and bestial of toils.

We had with us at Port do Grave, Nilds, on January 18th our new D. C., Brigadier Morshen, We appreciated his visif, more especially when we think of the stormy time one has when travelling time one has when travelling in this country at this time of the year. The roads have percived more than their due of Snow, and herses were deburred snow, and horses were debarred from travelling on them, so the D. U. had to use shank's pony in order in get here. His meeting was well altended.—W. H. Hillier. Candain.
